Are you an Attorney?

The first question an attorney asks... in offering the facts.

Intelligence cares not where the information comes from so long as it is based on:

Fact.

Are you a Registered Professional Engineer?

The first question a bridge builder would ask...

The author very seldom writes in the first person but in this document will do so.

I have noticed over the years that the senior grey hairs whether they are attorneys or academic scholars question only the validity of the data. The complexities of the world allow many opportunities for evil doings and one alone can never be wise to them all. The seniors of the world recognize that "titles" have little meaning when it comes to fact.

For you juniors of the world, you spent many years of listening to the teachings of academic scholars and one must respect that commitment of dedication, those years passed by with open listening ears. You have proved to the world you are intelligent and capable of learning and applying what has been learned.

I have a line of communication with some of the top attorneys and academic scholars in the country who accept my documents based on the facts. Response from them is minimal as the is very little the academic scholars can teach me in regards to applying the Uniform Commercial Code to ESIGN and UETA regarding either "Paper" or "Electronic" negotiable instruments.

Example, one scholastic professor stated one of the charts created was "pretty good" and wanted to know from what publication it came from. I informed him it was created for him in response to comments he made and he was free to use it as he wanted.

The laws of the land are like a bucket of sand, I only operate within a few grains of sand.
