

Huff n Puff

Dedicated to 7 year old Julia, where ever she may be. Not in Kansas, but in America.

&

Congress, as it appears they are somewhere on Mars.

We are going to Huff n Puff until we blow, uhh, uhh, Foreclose on your house.

Ole Momma Hen bought a new hen house. But Ole Momma Hen did not have enough eggs to pay for the new hen house. So, Ole Momma Hen borrowed a dozen eggs from Slicky Froggie to help pay for the house. Slicky Froggie agreed to loan Ole Momma Hen a dozen eggs. Slicky Froggie required Ole Momma Hen to pay back the dozen eggs. Slicky Froggie also required Ole Momma Hen to pay an additional egg a month for borrowing the dozen eggs until the dozen eggs were paid back. The egg basket was the proof that Ole Momma Hen owed Slicky Froggie a bunch of eggs.

Slicky Froggie decided he did not want to wait to get paid all his eggs, so he sold the egg payment plan to "Big Foot Weasel". Big Foot Weasel paid a dozen eggs to Slicky Froggie for the basket.

OH, NO! Slicky Froggie did not give Big Foot Weasel the basket! Slicky Froggie gave Big Foot Weasel a finger painting of the basket!

Big Foot Weasel knew he was going to take Ole Momma Hen's basket and add it to other chicken's baskets and sell them to Shyster Dog. But, Big Foot Weasel only had finger paintings of the baskets. Big Foot Weasel was not an honest Weasel.

Big Foot Weasel sold the finger paintings of the baskets to Shyster Dog. Shyster Dog knew he was only getting the finger paintings of the baskets. Shyster Dog was a Shyster.

Shyster Dog knew he could make a few extra eggs if he then sold all the finger paintings of the baskets to Slimy Snake. So, Shyster Dog sold the finger paintings of the baskets to Slimy Snake.

Slimy Snake knew he only had finger paintings of the baskets but went ahead and sold the finger paintings of the baskets to Good Time Investors. Slimy Snake was a snake in the grass.

Good Time Investor thought he was buying baskets and Ole Momma Hen says since he does not have her basket the Good Time Investor is not the correct party to receive Ole Momma Hen's eggs. The eggs are to be placed in the basket.

Ole Momma Hen does not know who to pay the eggs to, and Slimy Snake hires Biggie Bad Wolf to Huff n Puff and blow, uhh, uhh, foreclose on Ole Momma Hen's hen house.

Moral of the story, you can't put all your eggs in a basket if you don't know where the basket is.